

GOTHAM'S GREAT HORSE SHOW

New York, Nov. 18.—What is declared to be the greatest—and also the last—of the notable aggregations of horseflesh Madison Square Garden has known had its inaugural today and will continue through all of next week. As the famous garden will be torn down next spring, the National Horse Show Association, of which Alfred G. Vanderbilt is president, will have to seek a new home for next year's exhibition.

Forty thousand dollars in cash, in addition to numerous trophies and prizes will be awarded. This small fortune is divided among 152 classes, embracing every type of horse from the illiputian Shetland pony to the brobdignagian Clydesdale. The show opened today is the twenty-seventh given by America's premier horse show organization, and exceeds all its predecessors in quality and spectacular features as well as in number of entries.

The list of judges is a notable one. Lord Decies, who married Miss Vivian Gould last spring, has come from England to judge the officers' charges and militia mounts, and associated with him will be Col. William Hendrie of Hamilton, Ont., and Maj. Henry T. Allen of the United States Army.

Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas will judge the trotters and roadsters. John E. Madden, the famous Kentucky horseman and millionaire, is the sole judge of thoroughbreds. Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia will decide on the merits of ponies in harness, pony tandems and four-in-hands. Dr. Charles McEachern of Montreal will pass judgment on the heavy draught teams.

French Dragoons, Dutch Uhlans from Holland, British Hussars, Canadian Colonials, Belgian Chasseurs and United States Cavalry will meet in the military competitions. As usual, this feature of the show will be the most spectacular, as the officers will ride in the gay uniforms of their respective nations.

Forty-eight women are among those who will compete, seventy-seven horses having been nominated by these fair exhibitors. While the entries include ponies, hunters and harness horses, the majority are in the saddle class.

An interesting competition will be that for the traffic officers of New York, declared to be the best mounted and the most expert horsemen to be found in any municipal police force in the world.

LAND SHOW EXPLOITS WEST

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Every state of the West is represented by exhibits of its products at the United States Land and Irrigation Congress, opened today in Chicago to continue to December 9. The entire Coliseum and its annex have been engaged for the show. In addition to the Western exhibits, several states of the South and provinces of Canada have made displays. The Louisiana exhibit, arranged by the state government, is especially noteworthy.

The Harriman lines have taken the whole of the Coliseum Annex to boost the states traversed by those railroads. Moving pictures and lectures will be given daily during the exhibition.

The National Irrigation Congress and the International Livestock Exposition will be held here from December 4 to 9, and will greatly increase the interest in and attendance at the land show. It is expected that not less than half a million people will attend these events during the next three weeks.

BIG FOOTBALL GAMES TODAY

Bulldogs and Tigers.
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18.—By train and motor car thousands of frenzied football fans are pouring into New Haven today to witness the annual tussle between the Bulldog and the Tiger on the gridiron. With the competing elevens apparently about evenly matched, a battle royal is in prospect.

Yale and Princeton first met on the gridiron in 1873 and since that time thirty-six contests have been played. Yale has won twenty and Princeton nine games, while seven have ended in ties.

Pennsylvania Vs. Michigan.
Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 18.—Full of confidence and ginger and anticipating an easy victory by an overwhelming score, the University of Michigan eleven will meet the Pennsylvania team here this afternoon. Last year the two elevens played to a tie and in 1909 the Ann Arbor Institution was victorious over the Easterners by a score of 12 to 6.

Cornell at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Football fans of the Windy City will have an opportunity to witness an important inter-sectional game this afternoon when Chicago and Cornell clash on Marshall Field. Last year the Ithacans inflicted a disastrous defeat on the Chicagoans, the score being 18 to 0, but in the previous meeting Chicago managed to hold the Cornellians to a 6 to 6 tie.

Several other games of importance are scheduled for Western gridirons this afternoon. Pennsylvania and Michigan clash at Ann Arbor, Minnesota and Wisconsin meet on the field of the latter institution, and Illinois and Northwestern will play at Champaign. Kansas and Nebraska, ancient rivals for the football supremacy of the Missouri Valley, meet at Lawrence, Kan. A game of much interest in the South is that between Auburn and the University of Texas at Austin.

Texas Iron Ore.

To the uninitiated it is inconceivable why Texas iron ore should be shipped out of the state. Practically speaking only two tons of ore and one ton of coke are required to make a ton of pig iron. Texas ore can be mined, washed and crushed and delivered to furnaces located at the Texas ports for $1 per ton. Therefore, the cost of ore per ton of pig iron would be only $4 in comparison with $9.20 for Mesaba ores of like quality, delivered at Pittsburgh and practically the same to other manufacturing centers dependent upon the Lake Superior region for their supply. The cost of Pennsylvania coking coal delivered at the gulf ports can be reduced to less than $4 per ton, making the cost of both ore and coke per ton of pig iron about $9 as against $11.50 to $12 for the raw materials at Pittsburgh. The rates of freight on finished iron and steel products from the four principal manufacturing centers of the country to Texas common points on the principal items, such as pipe, bars, plates, beams, wire, nails, railroad materials and supplies and pig iron, average $9.65 per ton.

From these figures does it not seem that the shipment of Texas iron ore to the Eastern steel mills is an economic mistake? Is it not apparent that the possibility of profit in steel making in Texas is unequaled by any other industry?—Beaumont Enterprise

B. B. A. NOTES

We awoke this morning at the sound of the bugle, telling us to scour our rooms, which we all did. We are all rejoicing this morning after having done a good week's work. It seems as if every week that passes is more interesting than the one before.

The Eclectic Society met this week and initiated the new members. They did the society honor by electing Miss Pearl Drummond sergeant-at-arms.

We are now working faithfully to get out our paper. The girls are very much enthused about the paper and say we are going to have one and that they are willing to help us get it out.

The president has received several letters of thanks from the parents of some of the boys who attended this school for a quarter and then went home. One mother says she never saw as much change in her sons and her desire is that they may be with us next year, where they can come in contact with the Christian influences of the school.

The students' prayer meeting met last night with Miss Amanda Holli-man as the leader. They had a good program. One of the most interesting things done was the organization of a teachers' class. A number of the students wish to become leaders when they return home, and the superintendent says we must have a student-teachers' training class. By this he means the students who leave the B. B. A. can go back to their communities and take the lead. A leader is always appreciated in the home community.

The B. B. A. second team beat the high school team yesterday by a score of 5 to 0, one touchdown being made by the fullback. We are going to play again next Friday evening. Everybody is invited to witness the game. V. C. Mc.
